Introduction

This report is a summary of strengths and areas for coaching and development based on responses to the items in the assessment. The report is focused around six main dimensions addressing different aspects of your workstyle. Keep in mind as you read the report that right side scores are not better than left side scores. There are positive and negative implications for both right side and left side scores, although certain scores are more preferable for certain roles.

The results in this report are based on research conducted with samples of working adults and can be expected to represent the candidate's work-relevant characteristics. It is important to remember, however, that these results should not be used as the sole factor when making a hiring decision and should always be considered in the context of all available information about the candidate's fit to a specific role and work environment.

Kelly Sample's primary traits:

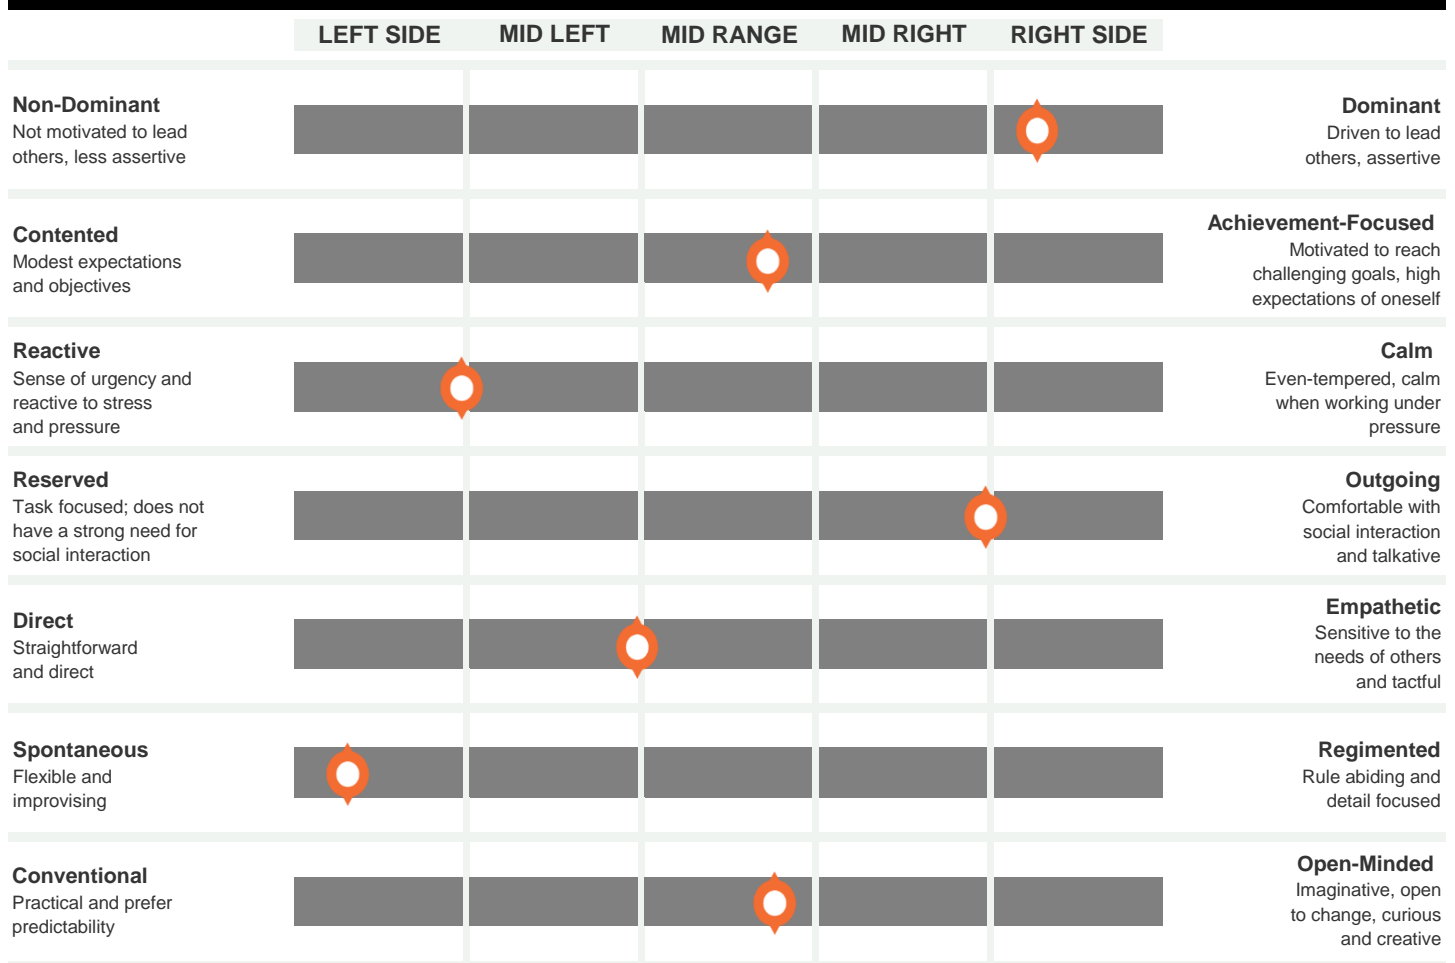

Spontaneous

Dominant

Reactive

These are the most extreme scores from the personality profile below.

Summary of Kelly Sample's results:

Kelly Sample's Validity Category:

Management considerations for leading Kelly Sample:

- May not be highly creative but can build upon others' ideas
- May need to know the reasons behind changes in plans or strategy
- May need time to adapt to significant changes
- May need time to become comfortable with taking risks

Interview Questions: Suggested questions to probe into this area to assess 'fit':

- Give me an example of a time when you needed to be creative or innovative in order to complete a task or objective. What was the situation and how did you respond?
- Sometimes we're required to change and we're not sure if the change will be beneficial. Tell me about a time when you were skeptical of a change or new idea at work. What was the situation and how did you react?

Conflict Management Styles Defined

Collaborating - Works to find a 'win-win' solution where both parties reach their objectives.

Obliging - Resolves conflict by 'giving in' and letting the other party have its way.

Dominating - Resolves conflict by directing the other party to accept his/her position.

Avoiding - Chooses to avoid conflict rather than face it directly.

Compromising - Resolves conflict by 'meeting in the middle' where both parties lower their demands.

Scores Explained

The marker  represents this participant's results compared to a research sample of managers

Scores range between 1-10 with the average range between 3.5-7.5 and a midpoint of 5.5.

With Supervisors

With supervisors or people they reports to, their primary or preferred conflict management style is 'Compromising'. This means that Kelly Sample would most likely try to find a "middle ground" solution where both parties make concessions to resolve the issue.

Their second most preferred conflict management style with their supervisors is 'Dominating'.

This indicates that Kelly Sample would also be able to be firm and assertive when resolving conflicts or disagreements.

With Direct Reports

With direct reports, their primary or preferred conflict management style is 'Obliging'.

Based on this, Kelly Sample would most likely let direct reports get what they want to resolve a conflict, issue or disagreement.

Their second most preferred conflict management style with their direct reports is 'Compromising'.

This indicates that Kelly Sample would also try to find a "middle ground" solution where both parties make concessions to resolve the issue.

With Peers

With their peers, their primary or preferred conflict management style is 'Compromising'.

This shows that Kelly Sample would most likely try to find a solution where all parties make concessions to "meet in the middle".

Their second most preferred conflict management style with their peers is 'Avoiding'.

This indicates that Kelly Sample would also try to avoid conflict or delay dealing with conflict with peers when possible.
